

Friday: Fluency Disorders I

Time 13:30 - 16:00

Author	Type Postersession Title	Abstract Page#
Kumar Namasivayam, A., van Lieshout, P.	Testing the sensory feedback dependence hypothesis in people who stutter	100
Goozee, J., Murdoch, B.E. et al.	Investigating the neural basis of stuttering using transcranial magnetic stimulation	101
Hartinger, M.	Cluttering between Hypo- and Hyperarticulation	102
Zmarich, C., Marchiori, M.	Coarticulation and stuttering in fluent syllables under contrastive focus	103
Hennessey, N., Nang, C. et al.	Chronometric analysis of verbal responding in people who stutter: A deficit in muscle command preparation?	104
Strauss Hough, M., Snyder, G.	The effects of a single self-generated syllabic prime on stuttering frequency	105
Snyder, G., Strauss Hough, M.	The effects of a single silent initiating speech gesture on stuttering frequency	106
Smith, L., Reilly, S. et al.	Exploring the relationship between epilepsy and stuttering: An EEG investigation	107
Boucher, V.J., Zaïdi, M.	Differential fluency in bilinguals who stutter: Questioning neuro-cognitive assumptions	108